
Women's Suffrage Centennial Update

Exciting Plans for Fall 2020 and 2021

CHRISTINA KORP/LOOK UP TO HER / PROJECTION MAPPING PARTNER: QUINCE IMAGING

A rendering of how Mount Rushmore will look with projections of suffragists Mabel Ping-Hua Lee beside Washington and Zitkala-Sa beside Lincoln during Look Up To Her.

THE COMMEMORATION of women winning the vote will continue beyond 2020 and through 2021 so as not to be sidelined by the pandemic. 2020 has already seen major events like the Centennial Float in the Rose Parade on New Year's Day and the 100th anniversary celebrations of the League of Women Voters in February.

There are many exciting and high profile events ahead across the country during August, National Women's Suffrage Month, and particularly during August 18-26, including release of the U.S. Postage Stamp and memorial coin, unveiling the statue of suffragists in Central Park, screenings of The Vote on PBS, and a great deal more.

While the centennial commemoration will extend into 2021, there are still many special centennial-related treats you can easily access today on your computer or phone. Here is a brief selection of news and resources to help you enjoy this historic anniversary. It only hints at what's happening throughout the country.

There is also a list of the exciting groups we know of celebrating the suffrage centennial in each state.

Women's Suffrage Centennial Update 2020 - 2021

UPDATE FOR EVENTS IN FALL 2020 AND INTO 2021

Look Up To Her: Women on Mt. Rushmore – The faces of Suffragists and Female Trailblazers from Abigail Adams to Rosa Parks will be projected next to the male faces in late August and September. Look for live stream. <https://lookuptoher.com/>

Forward Into Light – On and around August 26, 2020, buildings and landmarks from state capitols to skyscrapers to bridges to city halls across the country will light up in purple, white and gold as part of the Women's Suffrage Centennial Commission's nationwide "Forward Into Light" Campaign. Sign up at <https://www.womensvote100.org/forwardintolight>

Official Exhibits – Over the past 18 months, tax-payer funded exhibits and museum shows in Washington D.C. recognized the women's rights movement as never before. The Library of Congress exhibition, "Shall Not Be Denied,"

<https://www.loc.gov/exhibitions/women-fight-for-the-vote/about-this-exhibition/>, runs through September 2020 at least and the National Archives' show "Rightfully Hers," <https://museum.archives.gov/rightfully-hers>, is open until January 2021.

Their exhibit websites are full of information and original visual material as are their catalogs, including the National Portrait Gallery's, <https://npg.si.edu/exhibition/votes-for-women>.

National Websites – The two national centennial organizations have sites, <https://www.womensvote100.org/> and www.2020Centennial.org, rich with information, resources and lists of groups organizing actual or virtual events throughout the country.

There's also the free centennial Gazette with national news and state links at

<https://nationalwomenshistoryalliance.org/wp-content/uploads/Women-Win-the-Vote-Gazette-Volume-2.pdf>

Act Locally – Many communities throughout the country will observe the weeks around Equality Day, August 26, with special exhibits, online discussions, parties of various sorts, virtual events and more, even if local schools, libraries, historic societies, museums, universities, bookstores, civic groups are closed for now. Check to see if any of them offer online resources, virtual tours, calendars or special events. Encourage celebrations in 2021.

Maryland - "Raising Their Voices" is just one example of local events in the states, sponsored by the Maryland Humanities Chautauqua 2020. It features live performances of actresses portraying Alice Paul, Mary Church Terrell and Fannie Lou Hamer; videos will be posted online, <https://www.mdhumanities.org/events/>

Tennessee has many different events happening with one on August 18 in Nashville's Centennial Park featuring live-streamed sky divers dropping small Kewpie Dolls, www.tnsuffragemonument.org, a suffrage theme bar and tea event in The Hermitage Hotel, and the ringing of church bells. <https://tnwomensuffrageheritagetrail.com/about/> Other activities in Clarksville, Memphis and Knoxville.

State Websites – See the section following this for links to groups in all the states that offer up-to-date information on how their towns and cities are celebrating the centennial.

Votes for Women leaflets rained down from above at an exhibit in the Staten Island Museum Monumental Women – Dedication of the first statue of real women in New York City's Central Park is still set for Equality Day, <https://monumentalwomen.org/>.

New Memorials and Statues of suffragists are being created and dedicated throughout the country with

Febb and Harry Burn celebrate ratification

Tennessee in the forefront with six monuments across the state (one shows Harry Burn and his mother Febb). Others in the works include

The record setting parachute jump attempt by the Women's Skydiving Network's Project 19 is now set for Fall 2021, <https://www.brokenrecords.world/>.

The Centennial Motorcycle Ride to Washington D.C. has also been rescheduled for July 31-August 20, 2021, <https://centennialride.com/>

Hundreds of scheduled events have been postponed or put off until next year. These include countless exhibits and special events, plays, musicals, concerts and other performances like the Washington DC Choral Festival, and long-planned ceremonies like the dedication of the Turning Point Suffragist Memorial in Virginia, <https://suffragistmemorial.org/>. We look forward to a safer and wider celebration in 2021.

Ida B. Wells-Barnett in Chicago, Sojourner Truth in Akron, Susan B. Anthony in Adams (MA), and Frances Munds in Phoenix. Statues of Carrie Catt, Mary Church Terrell and Alice

Paul are planned for the Turning Point Suffragist Memorial.

Examples of other tributes include a Post Office in New York City being renamed for Mabel Ping-Hua Lee, Nina Otero Warren's homestead in Santa Fe being renamed in her honor, and the newly named Grimke Sisters Bridge in Boston.

The National Votes for Women Trail continues to add highway markers honoring suffragists and suffrage history in every state; a detailed map shows what's included, <https://ncwhs.org/votes-for-women-trail/>

Women's Rights National Historical Park in Seneca Falls, like many centers, continues on virtually. Equality Weekend-Seneca Falls will happen virtually, August 22-23, 2020. Programming will be on Facebook and YouTube. Programming from recent Convention Days events, "Legacies of our Foremothers," is available at https://www.youtube.com/playlist?list=PLMc_3BnOc1mYUezlvXYWAQ1Yt4gNF1zPZ. Plan for Convention Days events in July 2021.

SuffragetteCity100

Suffragette City 100 – popular site with an unfolding timeline highlighting suffragists and historical events, with an appropriate song every week; also has Zazzle store for suffrage supplies and is organizing a free Suffering for Suffrage virtual marathon on November 1, <https://suffragettecity100.com/>

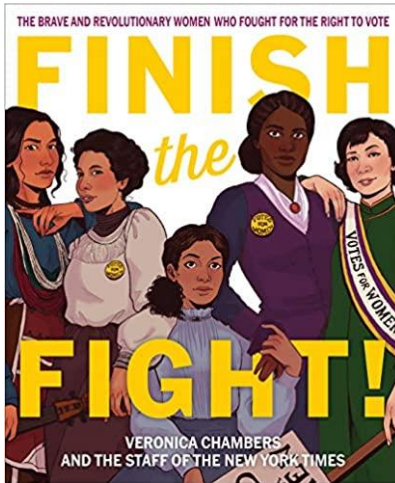

She Resisted: Strategies of Suffrage – interactive presentation with great visuals, related to The Vote PBS Special, <https://www.pbs.org/wgbh/american-experience/features/vote-she-resisted/>

Tour Paulsdale through a new video series that looks at Alice Paul's home in New Jersey in detail, <https://www.youtube.com/channel/UCkg22R3cumsRyCQcpi0CfFg> (You can also search for websites on your favorite suffragists like Carrie Chapman Catt, Frederick Douglass, Matilda Joslyn Gage or Inez Milholland; many others exist).

The Times Has Changed – The New York Times, long a vehement and outspoken opponent of women's suffrage, now has some journalists who are strong advocates and useful sources of information. Check articles, the upcoming book "Finish the Fight," and the Times' site In Her Words. (Also check the editorials from the early 1910s if you can.)

She Votes! Lynn Sherr and Ellen Goodman, both authors and journalists, are co-hosting a new podcast, She Votes!, an 8-part audio documentary on the suffrage movement with all its glory and shortcomings, <https://www.shevotespodcast.com/>. You'll get an update at sign up.
